WEB DEVELOPER

get to know me

Hailing from the Portland OR region, I've been immersed in the tech realm all my life. At the ripe age of eight, I began my quest into the word of code by developing my first site, utilizing the technologies of the fading nighties and early aughts, and kept going from there.

If I ever find any spare time, I enjoy programming the raspberry pi to do all sorts of crazy things, and researching new coding languages.
